How does one deal with online trolls? These trolls with their heinous schemes have made it difficult for many online users to enjoy the Internet. They pass off as innocent online (17)
users at first. When the time is right, these users often leave behind vile comments on contentious online topics that provoke other users into an argument. Despite being disturbed by (18)

Excerpt from Nature Magazine, published on 5 May.

Have you ever wondered where your vegetables come from?

Singapore imports most of our produce from all over the world. This is because Singapore does not have enough land for farming. To ensure Singapore is able to produce its own food, the Government is encouraging urban farming. In fact, in recent years, urban farming has become increasingly popular as people are more curious about the source of their vegetables and fruits. Singaporeans are worried about the amount of pesticide used. More people are growing edible plants in urban spaces, such as balconies and HDB corridors, without the use of pesticides.

Located at Kranji, City Farm is one of the more established urban farms in Singapore. On weekends, they offer farm tours and workshops for parents and children to get in touch with nature and learn about the importance of growing their own vegetables. They also help design and build edible gardens for residential use so that more Singaporeans can enjoy their own fresh produce. In addition, they conduct school visits to educate students on how to start urban farming.

Student ambassadors needed!

Do you have a passion for gardening? Volunteer with us and help promote urban farming to your schoolmates!

City Farm visits schools to give educational talks, teach students how to grow vegetables and build gardens together with them. We will train student ambassadors to guide other students on the correct techniques for growing their own vegetables.

Interested students are to drop us an email at joinus@cityfarm.sg

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 71 to 80 in Booklet B is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

It was Thursday morning just before assembly. Phil was on a mission. Hurrying along the Primary 3 corridor, he looked for his younger brother. Jimmy had left the house early to walk to school with a friend and had inadvertently forgotten his pocket money. As a Primary 6 boy, Phil had been entrusted to ensure that Jimmy had it in time for recess.

Phil was about to pop into his brother's classroom when he thought he saw the back of his brother's jacket further ahead. It had to be Jimmy. No one else in the school had a jacket like that one. 5

"Hey Jimmy!" he called out but his brother did not stop. Phil rushed forward and grabbed hold of the boy. But it wasn't Jimmy. It was someone Phil had never seen before and he was wearing Jimmy's jacket. As the boy struggled to break free, Mrs Atkins came striding towards them. Immediately, sensing the teacher's presence, Phil released his grip. Glaring at both boys, Mrs Atkins ordered them to follow her. Once they were at the school office, Mrs Atkins asked the younger of the two to explain. 10

"I was walking along the corridor when this boy grabbed me. I didn't do anything!" explained Daniel. 15

"He stole my brother's jacket," explained Phil.

"Liar!" Daniel immediately jumped to his feet and faced Phil, his fists clenched. "I have never stolen anything! This jacket is from my grandmother, a birthday present. Stop saying that!"

"Boys! I am sure this is a simple misunderstanding. Isn't possible that this is just an identical jacket, Phil?" Mrs Atkins reasoned. 20

Phil shook his head forcefully. "My mother got that jacket for me when she was overseas some years ago. Go on, look at the label inside the collar. It will say 'Di Roma'. That's because she got it in Rome. That is my jacket which I've outgrown so Jimmy, my younger brother, has been using it."

When Mrs Atkins asked Daniel for permission to look at the label, Daniel turned his back to her, indicating consent. The teacher gently pulled the collar of the jacket back. As she did, her eyebrows shot up. She stated that the jacket indeed had that specific label. Even as Phil started to accuse Daniel yet again of stealing, she told the boys to remain quietly seated while she made a quick telephone call. 25

Returning <sup>a</sup>short while later, Mrs Atkins explained that she had called Daniel's mother. It turned out that both boys were right. Someone had given the jacket to Daniel's grandmother and she had given it to Daniel. 30

Phil was about to make a scathing remark when something registered in his mind. It was only then that he remembered seeing his mother packing some clothes to give away. Turning to Daniel, he asked tentatively, "Who is your grandmother? What's her name?" 35

Daniel curled his lip. "None of your business. But her name is Lucy Taylor."

Immediately, Phil's face reddened. "Hey, I am sorry I grabbed you! You are right. It's your jacket."

"What?" Daniel looked straight at Phil. "You accuse me of stealing and now you tell me that the jacket is mine. Why?" 40

Phil looked at the floor, embarrassed. "It's just that, I know your grandmother. You see, she's... she helps my mom to clean the house. I guess my mom must have given her the jacket."

The words seemed to echo off the walls.

Daniel looked like he had been punched in the stomach. He backed towards the office door, anger written all over his face. Yanking off the jacket, he threw it at Phil's feet. "There's your jacket, Rich Kid! I don't need your charity!" 45

As Phil bent down to grab the jacket, he was full of remorse. Although all he had done was to tell the truth, he knew he was in the wrong. Standing up, jacket in hand, Phil resolved to be gracious and avoid making assumptions.

The aardvark gets its name from a South African word meaning 'earth pig'. _____ the
aardvark looks like a pig, especially with its body and snout, aardvarks actually share common ancestors _____ elephants and golden moles. Aardvarks are found throughout much of sub-Saharan Africa.
(30)

Aardvarks use _____ large front claws to dig holes at a rate of 0.5 metres in 15 seconds.
(31)
This enables them to get to their favourite meal _____ termites and ants. Aardvarks have long, (32)
sticky tongues with _____ they slurp up and swallow tens of thousands of insects from termite (33)
mounds and ants nests.

Aardvarks are most active _____ night and tend to live alone. During the day, they sleep curled up _____ their burrows. As night falls, aardvarks will emerge cautiously from their dens, (35)
(34)
_____ the lookout for predators. They are able to see at night, _____ otherwise have
(36) (37)
poor vision and are colour-blind.

Humans are the aardvark's biggest threat. Some landowners do not like the holes left behind by the aardvarks. The use of pesticides to grow crops on land inhabited by aardvarks _____ also (38)
reduced the number of insects available for aardvarks to eat. It is not surprising then, that its numbers are decreasing.

lineage hails from the Spaniel family. He has flop ears, a tail that never stops wagging, and a brown coat.

Some time ago, I enlist Flanagan in a programme to assist children which have difficulty reading aloud. Most of the children in the programme pesieve reading as something to be dreaded, but reading to a dog that is not jargemantal changes everything for them.

During our library time, I unroll Flanagan's paw-print rug in the children's reading corner.

Flanagan sits ajascnt to a bright yellow bookcase neatly stacked on all types of inviting books for a child to read and explore. Purched on top of the bookcase is an adorable plush puppy with a striking rezembalance to Flanagan.

When the first child arrives, Flanagan wags his tail to welcome her, and the reading session begins. Flanagan listens conshiensiously as the child reads, sometimes placing a paw on the child's knee. His attentiveness as each child reads aloud is amaze to observe. Flanagan has heard all sorts of stories. Each week, Flanagan makes a difference, changing a child's life story, one word at a time.

A team of scientists have unearthed what is believed to be the largest spider fossil ever found. _____ near the Daohugou village in Northeastern China, the perfectly preserved specimen is a close relative of the modern-day spider known as the Golden Silk Orb-Weaver. It is a type of spider known for the impressive _____ it weaves.

Experts _____ that the fossil is about 165 million years old. What surprises them is its rather large size, which _____ about five centimeters when stretched from end to _____. That is because this specimen of spider _____ during a period when oxygen levels were much higher, causing similar insects to _____ to almost monstrous sizes. For example, back _____, dragonflies sported a wingspan of up to a metre, while millipedes measured over two metres.

Similar _____ today's Golden Silk Orb-Weaver, this spider also had silk spinning organs on its leg, suggesting that it too was capable of spinning large webs, to _____ its prey.

Scientists believe that the ancient spider has been around for over 350 million years _____ the Earth was one big supercontinent known as Pangaea. However, the species was well spread out by the time Pangaea _____ up into seven continents and can therefore be found in many _____ of the world today. Since its close relative thrives in tropical climate, scientists speculate that the Daohugou region used to be warmer and more humid _____ it is today.

Generally, _____ are not well-represented in the fossil records as their soft external skeletons do not preserve well. As such, this is a significant find in the world of paleontology.
